The licence fee which currently stands at 8% of the AGR has not been changed, but since non-telecom revenues will be taken out, the amount companies pay as licence fee reforms got stuck.

would slightly come down. Among the other measures is rationalisation of bank guarantees, where in future there would be no requirements for multiple BGs in different licenced service areas and one BG will be enough. For future auctions, no BGs would be required. Interest rates have been rationalised and penalties removed from October 1 for delayed payments of licence fee and SUC. These would attract interest rate of SBI's MCLR plus 2% instead of MCLR plus 4% and interest would be compounded annually instead of monthly. Further, penalty and interest on penalty have been removed.

In future auctions, the tenure of spectrum has been increased from 20 to 30 years and after 10 years of acquiring spectrum, companies would have the option of surrendering it. However, since these measures would not bring any immediate relief to the operators. Though the government has said SUC would be scrapped on spectrum in future auctions, it did not clarify how the segregation of revenues accruing from different bands would be done. In the past, DoT has failed to do such segregation because of which SUC

Billions blown as Macau casino investors fold amid gambling review

At a news briefing on Tuesday, Lei detailed nine areas for the consultation, such as the number of licenses, better regulation and employee welfare, as well as having government representatives to supervise daily casino operations.

The government also plans to increase voting shares in gaming concessionaires for permanent residents of Macau, as well as more rules on transfer and distribution of profits to shareholders. Discussions over the future of Macau's casino licences come amid rocky US-China relations, leaving some investors fearing an edge for domestic players over US-based casino operators. The government has not singled out any US players, but companies have moved to beef up the presence of Chinese or local executives as they position themselves more as Macau operators than foreign one. Before licence expiry, operators have tried to strengthen corporate responsibility and diversify into non-gaming offerings to placate Beijing, which fears over-reliance on gambling. Macau has boosted scrutiny of casinos in recent years, clamping down on illicit capital flows from mainland China and targeting underground lending and illegal cash transfers.

Beijing has also stepped up a war on cross-border flows of funds for gambling, hitting the funding of Macau's junket operators and their VIP customers. In June, Macau more than doubled the number of gaming inspectors and restructured departments to boost supervision. George Choi, a Citigroup analyst in Hong Kong, said while the public consultation document gave few details, the suggested changes benefit long-term sustainable growth, with "positive implications on the six casino operators".
